CERTIFICATE OF ATTENDANCE

Learning goals:

- Participants will gain knowledge about Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) and how AAC can be used in the educational process and for participation in society, as well as how AAC may be included in the curriculum at Higher Education Institutions.
- The internship includes visits to schools in Oslo and Akershus, to observe educational practices and engage in discussions with teachers and administrations of the schools.
- Participants will gain knowledge of how AAC can be regarded as a form of a typical language development, on the importance of authorship for AAC users, and on experiences from a multi-cultural international project on aided communication comprehension and use.
- Participants will gain knowledge about how the Norwegian system of services are organized, and how this may foster inclusive practices for children using AAC.
- Participants will gain insight on research concerning literacy and AAC.
- Participants will gain insight into how AAC is used in everyday life in Norway by children and adults. This will be achieved through school visits, a seminar arranged by Master students who wrote their thesis on AAC, and with a seminar where an adolescent and his mother will share their experiences on the use of AAC and the Norwegian system of education.
- Participant will learn of how a digital service - Elevkanalen - can provide inclusive materials to schools throughout Norway.
